Father Goes Berserk, Kills 3 Children, Mother-in-Law

WEAVERVILLE, N. C. (AP)—Wayne R. Franks sat and talked with his estranged wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jerome Holcombe, on the front porch of the Holcombe home last night. The Holcombes were stringing beans. Franks sipped a bottle of beer.

Inside the house, Franks' daughter and two sons were sleeping. The children had been staying with their grandparents since Franks and his wife separated. Mrs. Franks was not there.

Brings Out Pistol

Suddenly, Franks, a 30-year-old service station employee, got to his feet and cried out:

"I'm going to kill every damn one of you." He jerked a .32 pistol from his pocket.

Minutes later, Mrs. Holcombe, about 55, and Franks' five-year-old daughter, Diane, lay dead, shot in the head. The two sons, Junior, four, and Johnny, three, were also shot in the head. They died later in a hospital at Asheville, 15 miles away.

Franks shot himself in the temple. He was reported in critical condition at the hospital.

Holcombe, who jumped from the porch and ran to seek help, was shot in the right shoulder. He flagged down a car and rode the six miles to Weaverville for help.

Stabbed in Heart

Deputy Sheriff Ted Gibson said Diane Franks also had been stabbed in the heart with a pocket knife.

When authorities arrived, Mrs. Holcombe's body lay in the living room of the house. Near her body lay Franks.

The body of Diane lay in one bedroom. The boys were in the bed they shared in another bedroom.

Authorities said the only explanation Holcombe could offer was that there had been disputes over the separation of Franks and his wife. Authorities said Mrs. Franks was visiting, somewhere in Virginia.

Youth Admits Slaving Pal

NEW YORK (AP)—Police said a penit New Jersey youth arrested last night near St. Patrick's Cathedral admitted killing a friend during a weekend card game.

Gerald J. DeCarolis, 24, of 103 Brookdale Ave., Newark, son of a former Newark detective, told police he came to Manhattan by bus after the slaying early Sunday in the West Side Political Club in Newark.

He disposed of the pistol with which he killed Louis Ruggio, 22, and wounded Anthony Ricigliano, 20, police said. Conscience-stricken DeCarolis has been staying at cheap Times Square hotels since arriving in New York and visiting various Catholic churches, police said.

Two detectives said they recognized DeCarolis from newspaper pictures when they spotted him on crowded Fifth Ave., not far from St. Patrick's. He surrendered meekly.

DeCarolis carried a knife, which he told police he had used to stab a girl. Police declined to say whether they considered this true.

SHREWSBURY—Plans took bud last night for a wild flower preserve on the school grounds. Mrs. Richard E. Nevius, Garden Rd., chairman of the Roadside and Civic Committee of the Shrewsbury Garden Club, asked permission of the Board of Education to prepare preliminary plans for the project.

'Wonderful Gesture'

"We are very happy to have you do it," Frederick Messina, board president, said. "It's a wonderful gesture."

Mrs. Nevius said agricultural experts from the county and Rutgers University had tested soil samples at the southern end of the playground and found them "very rich."

A suggestion that the wild flower preserve might include a small pool was nixed by the board.

Monroe Marx cited safety hazards along with the problems of vandalism and maintenance.

Reject Request

The board turned down a request by the League of Women Voters to use the Fern Ross Annex auditorium for a candidate's night Oct. 20. The Asbury Park, Red Bank and Middletown Regions of the LWV had planned to present candidates for freeholder and Congress.

The vote to reject the request was 4-3.

No official reason for the action was given, although the board's policy is to not open the school to outside organizations. Indications are it will be a cold winter in the school.

Gas Truck Fire Snarls Traffic On Parkway

TOMS RIVER (AP)—A tractor-trailer laden with 6,500 gallons of gasoline caught fire on the Garden State Parkway south of here yesterday after it had stopped with a flat tire.

The spectacular blaze slowed traffic for four hours.

No one was injured. The driver, Jerry Straniero, 54, of Newark, had gone for help when the blaze erupted.

State Trooper John Land said the blaze apparently was set off by the flat tire which began smoldering on the pavement.

Fire-fighting equipment was sent from the nearby communities of Toms River, Beechwood, Bayville, Island Heights and Pine Beach.

The U.S. Naval Air Station at Lakehurst sent a crash truck which covered the flaming vehicle and roadway with a four-inch coat of foam used to fight chemical fires.

The superhighways' south-bound lanes were closed completely until the blaze was brought under control. The heavy flow of southbound cars, many of which were on their way to the opening of the Atlantic City Race Course, was diverted to the northbound lanes.

Morris Jetport Jersey Eyed

UNION TOWNSHIP (AP)—State Sen. Joseph W. Cowgill, D-Camden, said yesterday the proposed Morris County jetport "is dead."

He said government officials are now interested in a suggested location for a jetport in the Ocean-Burlington County area.

Cowgill spoke at a meeting of the Pinelands Regional Development Council in this Ocean County community.

The meeting was attended by senators, assemblymen, freeholders and other officials from 12 Central and South Jersey counties.

Cowgill said the New York Port Authority needed authorization of the New Jersey Legislature before it could build the jetport it proposed for Morris County.

Said Cowgill:

"The Legislature never will extend the lines of the Port Authority. The Morris County jetport is dead."

The gathering instead pledged support of a jetport in the New Jersey Pinelands in Ocean and Burlington Counties.

It was estimated that $100,000 was needed for an engineering study of the proposal. Pledges of support for appropriation of the money by the Legislature for the purpose were made by legislators present.

Sen. Wesley L. Lance, R-Hunterdon, said the Port Authority's efforts to locate a jetport in Morris County were like trying "to put a baseball field in a bathtub."

Donald E. Sterner, chairman of the Monmouth County Planning Board said helicopters could speed jetport passengers to New York from a jetport in the pinelands.

Gen. Robert L. Copey, director of the N. J. Bureau of Aeronautics, said, "We have yet to find any aviation industry leader against the Burlington-Ocean airport."

Lance said the pinelands area was the only section of the state with about 40 square miles of flat land needed for an airport of the future.

Truck Hits Bus, 32 Are Injured

MOUNTAINSIDE—(AP) A tractor-trailer loaded with 20 tons of coal plowed into the rear of a crowded idled bus at 35 miles an hour yesterday. Thirty-two persons were injured.

The driver of the truck, Thomas Knoll, 25, of Schuylkill Haven, Pa., told police his gas pedal had stuck and he couldn't swerve because of the heavy traffic on Rt. 22.

The truck bus was carrying a capacity load of 45 passengers. It was propelled 50 feet into another bus. The second bus was carrying only eight passengers and sustained comparatively little damage.

The first bus, a New Market-to-Newark express, was crumpled in the front and rear. The truck spilled most of its load on the highways.

The injured were taken to Overlook Hospital, Summit, for X-rays. Only seven were injured seriously enough to be admitted, and they were all in fair condition today.

Eugene Kowalski, of 8 Henry Pt., Dunellen, the driver of the first bus, suffered a broken hand.

Congo

tegrity. It asked him to report back in three days.

Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Vasily V. Kuznetsov explained he voted for the rival Ceylon-Tunisia proposal because it specified Hammarskjöld's main job was to get the Belgian troops out.

Earlier he accused Belgium of aggression against the Congo and said if this aggression continued, his government would "not hesitate before any decisive action aimed at repelling the aggressor."

In introducing his resolution, Kuznetsov said only Belgian bayonets were propping up Tshombe. He said if the UN force could not oust the Belgians from the Congo, troops must be sent from other countries ready to help Ghana and Guinea both have offered to take their troops out of the UN force and put them under control of the Lumumba government.

Hammarskjöld told Kuznetsov bluntly, "I do not believe, personally, that we help the Congolese people by actions in which Africans kill Africans, or Congolese kill Congolese."

Tunisian Delegate Mongi Slim, introducing the Ceylonese-Tunisian resolution, also said the UN troops "ought to be fully authorized" to use force if that was the only way they could get into Katanga. But Hammarskjöld reminded the UN that it had power to enforce decisions for peace by calling on UN members to break off diplomatic relations, trade and communications with any recalcitrant country.

In a report he sent the council before flying back from the Congo Saturday, Hammarskjöld had said the problem was to get Tshombe to let the UN troops into Katanga by convincing him they would not take sides against him.

But in presenting the report yesterday, he declared the "main cause of continued danger" was the presence of Belgian troops in that province. He warned, "The problem of the Congo is one of peace or war—and not only in the Congo."

U.S. Delegate Henry Cabot Lodge said the stake was "peace not only for The Congo but for the world." He said Belgium no longer had any reason "to postpone speedy withdrawal from Katanga."

Belgium Foreign Minister Pierre Wigny, whose country set The Congo free June 30, said the resolution would "hurt the Belgian people" and make it hard for him to persuade them they could trust the UN force to safeguard the 20,000 Belgian nationals in Katanga so the Belgian troops could all go home. He said security must be "maintained without a break."

Congo Foreign Minister Justin Bomboko thanked the council and, not mentioning The Congo's various pleas for Soviet aid, said Hammarskjöld's position was "the only position that will bring us out of the deadlock."

In Elisabethville, the Katanga capital, the Provincial Assembly yesterday unanimously elected Tshombe head of state with the opposition minority boycotting the session.

Tshombe told newsmen he had cabled Hammarskjöld that African leaders in three Congo provinces supported his plan for a federation of the five Congo provinces rather than the strong central government Lumumba wants.

Lumumba flew home to Leopoldville last night to find that Leopoldville Province—home of the central government—was demanding autonomy and confederation like Katanga.

Young pickets shouted "Down with Lumumba!" Bakongo tribesmen of western Congo were reported rising against him amid economic stress. Belgian informants said separatism was growing in Kasai and Oriental Provinces.

But Lumumba reported a fruitful trip to the United States and through Africa. He told newsmen, "Africa from east to west and from north to south is on the side of the Congo government."

Believe U2 Pilot Was In Solitary

WASHINGTON (AP)—The father of U2 Pilot Francis Gary Powers says experts think his Soviet-imprisoned son has been given "a 10-to-15 day treatment in solitary confinement."

Oliver Powers of Pound, Va., did not identify the experts he said had told him that. He and his wife are heading for Moscow, where the son faces trial Aug. 17 on espionage charges.

But Russia's No. 2 jurist angrily dismissed as "absolute rubbish" the possibility that the pilot was brainwashed.

"Capt. Powers has not been influenced in any way for the trial. Such methods as using lie-detector and brainwashing techniques are loathsome to our legal ideals," L. N. Smirnov told newsmen in London last night. Smirnov is deputy chairman of the Soviet Supreme Court.

Powers, whose plane was shot down over Russia last May 1, faces trial before the Military College of the Supreme Soviet. The Soviet penalty for conviction of espionage can carry a penalty ranging from 15 years imprisonment to death.

Wife Going, Too

The pilot's parents arrived here yesterday on the first leg of their journey to Moscow. They plan to go on to New York today or tomorrow.

The wife of young Powers is expected to leave her home at Milledgeville, Ga., later this week. She is scheduled to arrive in Moscow Aug. 18.

The father told newsmen here he believed Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev will heed his appeal for clemency for his pilot son. He said he was pretty sure Khrushchev will listen to the appeal of "one working man to another and one father to another."

Asked about the possibility that his son had been brainwashed, Powers said a psychiatrist and handwriting expert had studied in detail the letters the son has sent home. He said their aim was to determine what may have been on his son's mind when he wrote.

The father said experts believe that men under the influence of drugs have a certain way of expressing themselves. He added this also applies to those who have been held in solitary confinement.

"They think he has been given a 10-to-15 day treatment in solitary confinement," Powers said.

The Russian jurist, Smirnov, talked with newsmen in London while attending a U. N. Crime Prevention Congress. He said he wanted to assure everyone in the West that Powers would get "the fairest possible trial."

Architect Frederic Fessler, Hazlet, has estimated over-all cost of the project, including all fees and contingencies, at $1,500,000. The school will be built on the "Pacific Park" site in North Centerville.

Television

In The Swim

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For those who like to be in the swim of things, NBC offered a water-logged summer television diversion last night, "Esther Williams at Cypress Gardens."

Irregular Pattern On Wall Street

NEW YORK (AP) — An irregular pattern prevailed in stock market trading yesterday as alternating currents of optimism and pessimism failed to shock the market into decisive action.

Yesterday's closing stocks:
ACC Ind 48 1/2; Chi Brk 22
Adams Ex 24 1/2; Jones Man 54
Air Reud 69 1/2; Jones & L 84 1/2

than it takes baseball idol Mickey Mantle to shave and tell about it on the TV razor blade commercials.
Eyebrows Up
A lot of eyebrows went up at the most recent Nielsen ratings, the estimate of audience size on which the TV industry generally puts its greatest faith.

Henry Fonda, beset by autograph hunters in the Universal studio commissary, complied grudgingly with their requests and then complained bitterly about allowing tourists in the dining room. Fonda is working on a second season batch of his NBC "Deputy" series.

ABC's "Alcoa Presents" caught up with such an off-beat tale that it will interrupt its summer re-runs Aug. 30 to get into our living rooms. It's based on the true story of a crippled woman, trapped by the Hawaiian tidal wave who was saved by a stranger—who identified himself as "Death" . . . Hugh O'Brian, who has been getting restless in his perennial Wyatt Earp role, has gotten himself cast as the villain in a forthcoming GE Theater production of a William Faulkner original teleplay.

Thirty counties and one parish (in Louisiana, are named for George Washington.

Johnson Faces Sternest Test in Senate Leadership

By JAMES MARLOW
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress' renewed session — which turned into a political donnybrook right from its start yesterday — will be the toughest test of Sen. Lyndon Johnson's leadership.

Ask New Bids On Expressway

TRENTON (AP) — The state Highway Department today called for new bids in three weeks on a vital Bergen-Passaic expressway project.

The department said this would cause intolerable traffic congestion and, in a letter to the bureau, said it would "jeopardize" a $25 million grant from the Port of New York Authority.

Palmer said that contrary to the worry expressed about the port authority grant, he has no fear of losing it. "I made that deal myself," he said, "and I was very careful. There are no strings attached."

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Dr. Henry H. Hill, president of Peabody College since 1945, announced last night he will retire Aug. 31, 1961.

His resignation was announced at a meeting of the faculty of the four-year teachers' college. Hill is president of the American Association of Colleges for Teacher Education and immediate past board chairman of the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, N.J.

work together to get things done, has his hands full this time. Johnson, for the first time, is playing a dual role. He is not only captain of the Democratic-run Senate but is the Democrats' vice presidential candidate.

Because the session has been planned to last only three weeks they have to work fast and the number of pieces of legislation they could hope to get through would have to be fairly limited.

Political Move? Kennedy pretty quickly indicated, but in very oblique language, that Eisenhower's basketful of suggestions was a political move. The Massachusetts senator said: "A presidential message calling for action on bills previously vetoed, and complaining about spending after a broad series of demands, is not unexpected in an election year — but if it can be backed up with Republican co-operation and leadership, this will be a productive and constructive session."

What makes the whole business even more political is this: Five of the six most important men in the presidential campaign are all sitting in the Senate. Besides Johnson and Kennedy, they are: Vice President Richard M. Nixon, the Republican presidential candidate, Sen. Thurston B. Morton of Kentucky, chairman of the Republican National Committee, and Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

Every move in these next few weeks will be — or will be suspected of being — somehow hooked into political motives. And for all the following time until November both parties will be blaming each other for any shortcomings, real or alleged.

But for that matter, since Kennedy and Nixon have an equal stake in the outcome, meaning election in November, the role each of them plays will be scrutinized harder than any they have played in the past. If you have hopes for great accomplishments, keep your fingers crossed.

Edgar V. Denise, superintendent of the Middletown office, was master of ceremonies. Joseph Menzozpane, Jr., offered the invocation. After the dinner, William Stranz, who has succeeded Mr. Menzozpane, Paul A. Egan, and John W. Hulshur spoke briefly and made the gift presentation.

The honored guest expressed his appreciation and recalled some of his earlier experiences with the company.

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — Federal Judge John W. Murphy yesterday ruled he had jurisdiction over a multimillion dollar legal battle involving ownership of 114,345 shares of common stock of Planters Nut and Chocolate Co., Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

Earlier, Judge T. Linus Hoban, specially presiding in Lackawanna County Orphan's Court, set Aug. 19 for a hearing of a number of issues involved in the contested sale of Planters stock.

The petitioners claim jurisdiction properly belongs in Orphan's Court of Lackawanna County, but Judge Murphy said in his order: "This court has jurisdiction — no problem of comity is involved — the motion is denied."

Elimination Of Railroad Tracks OKd
WASHINGTON (AP) — Interstate Commerce Commission examiner W. J. Gibbons yesterday recommended that the United New Jersey Railroad and Canal Co. be authorized to abandon about one mile of elevated trackage in Jersey City, N.J., extending from Brunswick St. to the Jersey City passenger terminal at Exchange Pl.

The Pennsylvania Railroad leases the line and now operates 13 daily commuter trains over it. The examiner said in this connection that if the four-track facility is to be dismantled, the Pennsylvania must first obtain authority from the New Jersey Public Utility Commission to discontinue the Newark-Jersey City runs of these trains.

Poor Man's Philosophers:

By HAL BOYLE

You think you've got troubles? Well, you don't even know what troubles are—unless you've got a size 7½ head.

"Whatever you do in life, don't get a big head." This advice is given to millions of youngsters every year by everyone from maiden aunts to camp counselors. The same advice is given to film stars, salesmen, army sergeants or flagpole sitters—to anyone growing up or going up in the world.

"Don't get a big head whatever you do!"

This advice is sound, sane and sensible. But what if you can't avoid it? What if your head becomes enlarged, not by prideful self-nurture, but by nature?

What if you were born with a big head and, no matter what you did, it kept growing bigger . . . and bigger . . . and still bigger?

If you are one whose head stands out in a crowd, your problems begin in your youth.

Guess which one of the gang gets nicknamed "Punkinhead"?

Guess which one, when the kids are ducking for apples at a Halloween party, gets his head caught in the bucket—so that they have to call the fire department to set him free?

Guess which one the algebra teacher calls on to explain the theory of quadratic equations. Naturally, the kid with the big head. His noggin catches the teacher's eye because it stands out in the class like a toadstool in a cluster of daisies.

There isn't a thing you can do about it either. As a lad I remember tying a rope around my head above the ears hoping it would equeeze smaller while I slept. All it gave me was a headache—a big headache.

When I reached maturity, my head finally stopped growing—I hope. On cold clear crisp days I have a

Telephones In Buses Requested

TRENTON (AP) — The N.J. Bell Telephone Company has asked permission to install mobile telephones in buses for public use.

In an application filed with the State Public Utility Commission, the company said a demand has developed for the same sort of telephone service provided train passengers.

The company said it was dropping its mobile telephone service for waterfront, because there was no demand for it.

The application indicated the basic charge for installation of a telephone on a bus would be $50. It did not show how much passengers would be charged for calls.

Medical Mirror "Low Calorie" Ice Cream

• Night Kidney

Q. What is the calorie content of "low-calorie" ice cream?
A. According to an editorial in a widely read medical journal, the calorie content of special ice creams is not too different from that of ordinary ice cream. Synthetically sweetened ice cream has 176 calories per serving. Special ice cream for reducing diets and for diabetics has 133 calories per serving.

Q. Will you please explain the term "two pyelonephritis, night kidney"? Is medicine necessary?
A. Our guess is that the reader is referring to some condition involving both kidneys which makes frequent trips to the bathroom necessary. Pyelonephritis (note spelling) is, of course, a definite and meaningful medical term. Simply stated, pyelonephritis means infection of the kidney. The germs that cause the trouble may reach the kidney during the course of a blood stream infection or as a result of obstruction of the urinary system. Symptoms of pyelonephritis include chills, fever, vomiting and sweating. There may be severe pain and tenderness or merely a dull ache in the kidney region. Most early kidney infections can be successfully treated with drugs. We're in business for your health. Our store is stocked and staffed to cater fully to your every need in health goods and services.

size 7½ head, but on warm muggy days in summer, it swells to size 7¾.

Really, a size 7½ head is only about a half-size larger than an ordinary head, but what a whale of a difference this half size seems to make.

Unkind strangers at cocktail parties murmur remarks like, "If your head was stuffed it sure would look purty over a mantelpiece—that is if you only had antlers."

They also half-believe that because you have a big head you must have a big brain and therefore should be smarter than they find you really are. Actually, of course, the size of the brain is no real index to mental ability.

Some years ago scientists found the second largest brain on record belonged to a Russian novelist—but the largest belonged to an idiot.

When a man with a big head gets a haircut it takes longer to trim him than the average man. About two minutes longer. Over a lifetime he will spend about two days more in a barber chair.

When a man with a big head goes bald, he looks balder than anybody. In fact, he looks like a burnished basketball.

But the worst problem is hat and caps. He can rarely find one to fit him.

A cap makes him look pathetic.

A derby makes him look like a ward heeler, a homburg like an undertaker, a straw boater like a wandering wove haystack. He does look well in a 10-gallon cowboy hat, but the penalty here is that every hatcheck girl mistakes him for a Texas oilman and expects a $5 tip.

So, friends one and all, do not laugh at a man with an over-sized noggin. He would gladly trade places with you pinheads any day in the week.

Servicemen Not Restricted To An Absentee Ballot

TRENTON (AP) — The attorney general's office ruled yesterday that people in the armed forces may vote in person at the polls in New Jersey. The decision said military personnel are not restricted to absentee voting.

The opinion was written by Deputy Attorney General William L. Boyan for Samuel A. Naples, secretary of the Mercer County Election Board.

Boyan said the absentee ballot law was passed to make sure people in the armed forces were not deprived of a chance to vote.

In order to vote in person at the polls, a serviceman must state residence and registration requirements, Boyan said. The minimum of six months' residence in New Jersey is not met by being stationed at a military base within the state, he said.

Once a serviceman asks for an absentee ballot, Boyan said, he cannot vote in person. But, if he returns to his New Jersey home within 10 days of an election, he can ask for a new absentee ballot and deliver it personally.

Digging Into History

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Before parties from universities in Oregon and British Columbia have carried out excavations behind other damsites. The work is co-ordinated by the National Park Service and the Smithsonian Institution. It is generally financed by the agency building the dam. For instance, the Grant County PUD, in accordance with a requirement in its license from the Federal Power Commission, has put up $40,000 for archaeological excavations at its two damsites over a five-year period.

Not Only in U. S. Similar work goes on in other parts of the country. President Eisenhower recently signed a bill providing for preservation of historical and archaeological data which might be lost because of dams. The Interior Department said this had already happened in many cases, notably those of the Randall, S. D. and Buford, Ga., reservoirs. Actually, legislation along similar lines was already in effect—enacted in the Valley Authority.

Dam-inspired archaeology is not, for that matter, confined to the United States. The United Nations educational, scientific and cultural organization and the United Arab Republic are currently raising funds to save ancient Egyptian sites which will be flooded by the Aswan Dam on the Nile River.

The artifacts being recovered here at Crescent Bar will go to the university, except for some of the shovier items like projectile points, which will be placed in an exhibit at the dam. "What we are after," says Dr. Robert E. Greengo, associate professor of anthropology in charge of the project, is the information.

Piecing A Story Piece by piece, these grimy, perspiring scholars are fitting together the story of the semi-nomadic Indian tribes who wintered along the mighty Columbia in prehistoric times.

There are 18 in this group from the University of Washington—excavating in an area which will be flooded by Wanapum Dam, under construction by the Grant County, Wash., public utility district.

Six days each week, a digging party makes a five-mile motorboat trip downstream from the group's headquarters at the Crescent Bar Community Hall to the site of an ancient Indian village. The site is inaccessible by land. Carefully, square by square, they dig away the crust of centuries overlying Indian "house pits" and fire hearths. The pits are shallow depressions on which the Indian erected tent-styled homes.

8,000 Years Old? Nobody knows just how old these relics are. This is one of the things the archaeologists are trying to find out. Some estimates of the age of finds in the area range as high as 6,000 to 8,000 years. Most are more conservative.

Some of these same students dug at another site downstream, above the same agency's Priest Rapids dam. A group from Washington State University is working in the reservoir-to-be behind Ice Harbor dam on the Snake River.

Closed-Door Meetings

The Henry Hudson Regional Board of Education last week barred the press and public from a session during which projected school taxes were discussed.

Granted the regional school has yet to be built and estimated operational and maintenance costs for the project have yet to be put into final form.

On the other hand, one of the key questions which residents in both Atlantic Highlands and Highlands are asking is "How much is it going to cost, in taxes?"

The board has not failed to let the public in on its step-by-step planning meetings dealing with physical construction. As a result, public sentiment was gauged and a good many changes were made in construction plans.

By barring the public from its step-by-step discussions of taxes, no matter how "preliminary" initial talks may be, the board is divesting itself from this guide to public opinion.

As one board member so aptly put it, "Closed meetings should have no place here."

It is to be hoped that the school referendum passes. But if it is defeated, the board must look back to its closed-door policy as a contributing factor.

The Lesson of Greenville

Entirely too often people will put in demands that their local, state or federal government or a combination of them, slide further into debt to finance what may be regarded as necessary improvements. Little thought is given to the facts that the debt must be paid back through taxation—or that these improvements may be of limited rather than general benefit. Dismissed is the idea that individuals may make contributions in effort, skill, planning or money to install the desired facility. Not thought of is the obvious fact that if enough people join hands in getting the job done the personal effort is small.

Citizens of Greenville, Pa. wanted a new skating rink for their children. They figured it would cost $150,000 to build and equip. They now have this facility and the tax cost was nothing.

Civic leaders set up a nonprofit corporation. It sold two types of bonds—regular 20-year, five per cent notes in $100 denominations and 20-year no-interest notes in $500 values entitling holders to free privileges at the rink. So popular was the financing program that it is indicated the entire bond issue will be retired within five years and the rink will be put in the city's hands.

Greenville leased the corporation a parcel of city-owned land for $1 a year to provide a setting for the facility. Local firms, unions and college students pitched in their talents to complete the construction. The ultimate cost, says Architectural Forum magazine, was $70,000, not the $150,000 first anticipated. All citizens are proud of that rink. It is theirs. They asked for nothing and received much.

Government handouts leave much to be desired. They, first of all, are costly. Also, they leave little if any room for the public spirited individual to exercise personal initiative. It can be hoped that the lesson of Greenville will be studied and imitated well and often.

Your Money's Worth:

'Finding' a Nestegg Worth $82,800

By SYLVIA PORTER

In my account at the Social Security Administration's head office in Baltimore, Md., is an earnings credit of $82,800, I learned today.

It represents the protection which I and my employer have bought for me through our social security tax contributions since I moved into this greatest insurance system ever devised in our nation.

It was back in 1937, when the system started, that I began my contributions as an employee. By the end of 1960 my contributions over all these years will have come to $1,290—the maximum any employee could have contributed, for I came into the system and I have remained in it at the top salary for social security payments. In these years, my employer has contributed an identical amount—$1,290.

The total of our contributions as of the end of 1960 will be $2,580. With this I have achieved an earnings credit totaling a whopping $82,800. And millions of Americans have similar credits in their social security accounts, although they probably aren't aware of it.

What if I were single, 62 at the end of 1960 and I decided to retire and draw my benefits?

Even though I'd have to take a reduced benefit because I had chosen to retire at an earlier than traditional age, I would be guaranteed $96 a month in benefits for life tax-free.

In a little over a year, my monthly benefits would have exceeded my total tax contributions. I'd be "home free" with a guaranteed life-time monthly pension of $96, exempt from all taxes.

What if I were single, 65 at the end of 1960 and I decided to retire and draw my benefits?

My monthly pension, guaranteed for life and tax-free, would come to $120. In less than a year, I would get back by entire tax contributions.

What if I were single, 65 in the mid-1960s and ready to retire? My guaranteed monthly pension then would come to approximately $125.

CARMICHAEL

SAY WHEN---

The story I reported here yesterday about the young widow who didn't know that her husband's social security had provided her and her three infants with a potential inheritance of over $62,000 is what prompted me to check my own credits. As you can see, I have now done so—and it is a sound move for you to make too. It's easy.

So go in person or write to the office of the Social Security Administration nearest you (you'll find the address in the phone book under the heading "U.S. Government - Dept. of Health, Education & Welfare") and ask for postcard form OAR-7004.

The postcard is preaddressed to the Social Security Administration at Baltimore and is entitled "Request for Statement of Earnings." On this card, you will write: your social security account number; date of birth; name; address. You must sign your own name. Then stamp the card, mail it, and by return mail you'll receive a statement of earnings credited to your account.

There are lots of reasons you should do this—all good.

First, the knowledge of your earnings credits will give you a lift. Do you realize that a pension guaranteed for life of $120 a month is equivalent to having $40,000 invested for life in absolutely riskless securities at three per cent a year tax-free?

Second, the knowledge will be vital to your intelligent planning for your financially independent older years. Of course, a social security pension is hardly adequate for comfortable retirement, but it is a darn good base on which to build a personal investment program.

U.S. Bases in Britain

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Someone ought to explain to the British people why we have military bases in Great Britain. They are not there because the American people desire to pay the cost of such an enterprise. They are there to protect Great Britain, as we have done in two wars at great cost of blood and wealth. It is particularly true of the British Labour Party that they make a habit of twisting the neck of the American eagle as we used to twist the tail of the British lion. For instance, Phillip Noel-Baker, a Labourite, asked in Parliament:

SOKOLSKY

"Since it is universally admitted that reconnaissance flights by spy aircraft are illegal under international law is it not desirable that the House (of Commons) should know whether the Prime Minister is consulted before such flights are made, and if he has given his approval?"

Mr. Longden, a Conservative, replied:

"... As the employer of more spies than anyone else in the world Khrushchev should put his own glasshouse in order before threatening to send us a rocket."

Hugh Gaitskell, leader of the British Labour Party who may one day be Prime Minister of Great Britain, raised this point:

"Is it not clear that the circumstances in which the original agreement were made differ considerably from those that obtain now? The original agreement spoke of the use of bases in emergency, whereas it is clear from the answers today that they are being continuously used for various expeditions of one kind or another. Is it not clear we must have a new agreement on these bases?"

The Western world, including Great Britain, has faced a continuous emergency since 1945. It has been part of the Cold War, originated by Soviet Russia and designed to keep the West engaged in numerous difficulties, surprises, shocks constantly and unendingly. If Gaitskell does not know the nature of the Cold War, its concept in Communist ideology, he is not a safe leader of an ally.

The presence of bases in Great Britain is a result of consultations between President Truman and Prime Minister Attlee of Great Britain. Both had met with Stalin at the Potsdam Conference. Both understood the nature of Soviet perfidy. Both believed that their countries had won World War II and that Europe would know a greater democracy. Both discovered that they were mistaken. President Truman made no secret of his disappointment; Prime Minister Attlee was undoubtedly embarrassed because as a Socialist, he did not expect what he found. The Truman-Attlee agreement concerning bases was the result. The United States agreed to stand guard over Great Britain in the interest of Great Britain. Enter Emanuel Shinwell, the Labourite, to say:

"Will the Prime Minister tell us what are the terms of the Attlee-Truman agreement. Would it not help to clarify this if we knew the terms? Was there any written agreement? As a member of the Cabinet and Minister of Defence, I am not aware that there was a written agreement."

To this Prime Minister Macmillan replied:

"I do not think I said there was a written agreement. An understanding was reached between the United Kingdom and the United States Governments in October, 1951, during Mr. Attlee's premiership, under which the use in emergency of bases in this country by United States forces was accepted to be a matter of joint decision in the light of the circumstances prevailing at the time. This understanding depended on no formal document. It was accepted as a mutually satisfactory arrangement, which was subsequently confirmed."

Finally, Harold Davies, another Labourite, said:

"None of us wants to play either the Russian game or the American game. We want to play the game with the British people whose lives are at stake."

WILLIAM S. WHITE

WASHINGTON—Suddenly the presidential campaign is a blazing three-front war. Cheerfully ignored is that traditional period of underdeclared and partial armistice between nominating conventions and Labor Day which we used to know in presidential election years.

This time they are going at it immediately and hotly. And it is plain that until Election Day there will be no pause.

The first front engages the presidential aspirants directly. Kennedy the Democrat, in his GMQ in Hyannis Port, Mass., huddles with a lengthening list of volunteer lieutenants. And even as he draws up his central battle order he keeps his main batteries firing incessantly upon Nixon, the Republican.

Nixon is making his GHQ a mobile one. He swoops down for a few hours into his native California. Then he pulls up his forward command post—which is his airplane—and plunges into the newest state, Hawaii. His direct shelling of Kennedy is, for the moment at least, somewhat less intense than the fire he is getting from that quarter.

The second front is the battle of handouts—the newspaperman's term for the formal statements, charges, manifestos and such handed out by politicians. The multi-copying machines ran already at burning speed in Kennedy headquarters in Hyannis Port. They are turning fast, too, in Nixon's rear command post here in Washington.

Already far more words have been flung in this way by both sides than ever before had been flung before mid-August had been reached.

The third front is the floor of the United States Senate. The resumed session is still formally to open. But already a marshaling and counter-marching goes on there for a politely savage struggle which may have great influence on the outcome in November.

The Kennedy-Johnson forces will, of course, be under Kennedy's ultimate command, there as elsewhere. But in this one theater of action the second officer, Senator Lyndon B. Johnson, will have a great and possibly a decisive hand in the Kennedy-Johnson strategy. For in the Senate Johnson, as still the Majority Leader, is still the senior officer present.

What Kennedy and Johnson mean to do is to run up, in weeks' time, a legislative record of popular appeal and liberal cast. These bills they will send to President Eisenhower to accept or to veto. If he accepts them, Kennedy and Johnson can properly claim the credit—or blame—for what is in them. If the President rejects them, the Kennedy-Johnson forces will counterattack—not the President but Nixon.

Nixon, for his part, will be operating in the Senate without any assistance from his running-mate, Henry Cabot Lodge. Lodge, our ambassador to the United Nations, intends to go on with his duties there. But the vice president will not be without his resources on the floor of the Senate. He is still its presiding officer.

Already, moreover, he has the undoubted support of the whole Republican side of the Senate. No Republican there at this point of crisis, whatever his past differences with Vice President Nixon, is now going to help in the destruction of presidential candidate Nixon.

Taking all in all, it would appear at the moment that Nixon was a bit outgunned on each of the three fronts of this war. But there is this to remember; Nixon is still far the most experienced national campaigner in the field.

JIM BISHOP: Reporter

A Father and His Daughter

The big apartments along the Lake Shore waited for the evening sun to get behind them, and then pointed long blue fingers across the park toward the yacht basin. A 40-footer moved out in Lake Michigan slowly, her engines growling and strangling in the swells. It was a quiet time, a time when even the leaves hold their breath.

BISHOP

Up high in one of the buildings, the Vice President was talking about children. Someone—namely, me—had pointed out that, no matter how many children come from the same set of parents, God has a habit of distributing virtues so that each one is different.

My Ginny, for example, is the spiritual beauty of the family, but Gail is the personality kid. He said it was like that in his family. Patricia Nixon, 14, is the serious beauty with a great sense of responsibility; Julie, 12, is the sparkling wit, the one who almost dozed through her father's acceptance speech.

Mrs. Nixon permits the girls to watch television on Saturdays only, and she marks the shows they are allowed to watch. Sometimes, when Patricia is busy on the phone with her friends, Julie watches a cowboy movie by herself. One recent Saturday, this happened and Julie started to dial the set by herself.

Her father was in another room, working over the mail. Mrs. Nixon was in the kitchen, helping with a salad for dinner. Everything was quiet in the house, as the Vice President tells the story, when Julie burst into his room. The child was excited.

She explained that she had been trying to get her cowboy movie, but, in passing, had heard the name of Nixon mentioned on another channel, and had stopped the dialing to listen. The child was bug-eyed.

"Daddy!" she said. "There is a man on there and he is saying awful things about you. Terrible things."

Richard Nixon looked up from his work. He had to smile at the innocently outraged expression. "What did the man say?" he said softly. The child shook her dark head so that the short bob shook around her ears. "Awful things," she said. "He doesn't like you at all."

He called his daughter to him. She came over and stood near the desk. He rolled a pencil back and forth on the blotter, thinking. "There are some things you should know Julie," he said. "This is a very big land. There are a hundred and eighty million people in it. Some people like you. Some do not. No matter how hard you try, it is impossible to make everybody like you."

Mr. Nixon thought about it for a moment. "That goes for everybody," he said. "You, as well as me. When you are in public life, as I am, you try to get as many people as possible to like you and believe in you. If the majority likes you—not all the people, but more than half—you can get elected."

He looked at her. She looked at him. "You understand?" he said. She nodded. "The man you were listening to," he said, "belongs to the Democratic Party. He doesn't like me any more than I like him. He has a right to say these things about your father, just as I have a right to say that his party hasn't done a good job."

He was trying to prepare the child for the big campaign to come. "Nobody takes the bad words too seriously," he said. "It's part of a game called politics, and I'm sure you've heard the word before." "Yes," she said. She had. "Now," he said, "if I went out saying nice things about this man, and he went around saying what a good man I am, all the people would be confused and they wouldn't know which way to vote."

Julie thought about this for a moment. Then she smiled a little and nodded her head in understanding. It was, as she reasoned it, all part of a game the big people play. Still, she didn't like the idea of anybody saying mean things about her daddy.

"Aren't you going to be the next President of the United States?" she said. It was a direct interrogation, and it was also a declarative sentence and a challenge of love. "I'm running for President," he said. "I may be elected, and I may not. If enough people like me, I will. If not, someone else will be President."

Julie pouted. "Who?" she said. Mr. Nixon realizes that his little girl knows nothing of politics, and very little of the personalities. "Senator Kennedy," he said quietly.

The child turned away from him and waved both hands above her head. "Senator Kennedy?" she said. "Oh ho! There goes the country!"

New Tricks

Device Makes Radar Stronger

FORT MONMOUTH — Development of a new electronic amplifier, said to be among radar's most powerful microwave transmitter tubes, has been undertaken for the Army Signal Corps by Sperry Gyroscope Co. The new device, a super-power klystron, will be available for use with Nike Zeus, the Army's anti-missile defense system now being developed by the Western Electric Co. It will extend future radars into the next higher level of super-power, which will be enough to serve as a basis for the new tube will be built for use systems.

New Tricks

With the higher power klystron, we can make radars perform new tricks for better detection of distant, fast-moving targets," Army scientists said. The new development is being accelerated under an initial contract for $1.3 million. Twenty additional developmental models of new tube will be built for use in development of new types of radars.

About $350,000 in the initial development is being subcontracted immediately to small business firms for construction of special purpose test equipment for experimental operation of the new klystron. This includes a 100-ton high-voltage unit about the size of a small ranch house (30 by 40 feet) for testing the new klystron.

Special Techniques

Initial design of the super-power klystron has already been pushed to completion through use of special electronic computer techniques devised by Dr. C. C. Wang, Sperry scientist. The computer mathematically constructs and tests experimental models of the tubes before they are built. In this way experimental work that previously required months of trial and error in the laboratory is now accomplished with exactness in a few days in the Sperry electronic tube facility.

The super-power tube project is one of a number of advanced klystron developments being conducted under the guidance of Army scientists in the Microwave Tubes Branch of the Army Signal Research and Development Laboratory, Fort Monmouth.

Scientific advisor to the project is Army scientist Dr. G. E. Pokorny.

The development work is under the direction of T. D. Segre, chief high-power klystron engineer at Sperry's electronic tube laboratories in Great Neck, N. Y.

New Use For Canal

PORT SAID, Egypt (AP) — Dredging to let ships of up to 45,000 tons use the Suez Canal is nearing completion.

The project opening the famous 107-mile waterway to vessels with a 37-foot draft is expected to increase the canal's income by 10 per cent annually.

These ships now must go around the Cape of Good Hope to travel between the Far East and Europe.

In a trial run the British tanker Lovellia, with a 36-foot draft, sailed from Port Said to Ismailia, at the canal's midpoint two weeks ago.

Kean Calls GOP Brass To Session

NEWARK (AP) — Essex County Republican chairman Robert W. Kean said yesterday he had invited county leaders from seven GOP strongholds to meet tonight on the choice of a New Jersey presidential campaign manager.

Kean said he had asked the leaders to meet at his home in Livingston with state Republican chairman Carl Erdman.

Kean said his main purpose in calling the meeting was "to ensure that representative of the counties which gave President Eisenhower more than two-thirds of his vote in 1956 are consulted" on the selection of New Jersey's campaign manager for Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

Kean confirmed that Bernard M. Shanley, Republican national committeeman from New Jersey, is seeking the post and has received support from influential circles.

But Kean added that Leonard W. Hall, Nixon's national manager, has indicated that the vice president will abide by the wishes of New Jersey leaders and that Nixon is not urging Shanley's selection.

Kean defeated Shanley for the Republican senatorial nomination in 1958.

Kean said he is not opposed to Shanley, but wants to be sure his party "selects the man who can carry the greatest amount of votes for Nixon and Lodge."

Leaders from Essex, Bergen, Union, Morris, Hudson, Monmouth and Passaic Counties were invited.

Shanley has been mentioned as a possible GOP gubernatorial candidate in 1961.

JWV Hits 'Hate Groups'

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The national commander of the Jewish War Veterans wants the government to investigate what he calls "hate groups."

At an interview here yesterday in connection with the convention of the veterans, national commander Bernard Abrams from Jersey City, N.J., singled out George Lincoln Rockwell's American Nazi Party.

Abrams said Rockwell has been speaking in Washington, D.C., and other Eastern cities for about four years and has said "that the job of Hitler was not finished and that the rest of the Jews should be exterminated."

"What we want to know," Abrams said, "is where these hate groups are getting their financial backing. That's why we are asking the investigation by the House and Senate."

He said the 4,000-member convention will ask the government to probe the alleged tie-up between Arabs, Communists and terror organizations.

Johns-Manville, Strikers To Resume Talks

MANVILLE (AP) — Commissioner Robert P. Walsh of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service yesterday called for a meeting Thursday between the Johns-Manville Products Corp. and its striking production workers.

Negotiations were called off last Friday by Walsh after the company and the union, Local 800, International Paperworkers and Papermakers, became deadlocked over an insurance program.

Earlier yesterday the company and union met in Superior Court in Newark before Judge David A. Pindar regarding the expiration of a temporary injunction obtained by the company to limit picketing.

The union agreed to maintain orderly picketing at the plant site. It was also agreed that if there was any violation of the picketing arrangement the company could request a permanent injunction.

Some 3,100 production workers are striking in the dispute over sick leave, seniority, insurance, vacations, union shop, length of contract and wages.

The company employs a total of about 4,500 workers. The union is asking for a one-year contract providing a 15-cent-an-hour across the board salary hike.

The company is offering a two-year contract calling for a four per cent wage increase in 1960 and a three per cent increase beyond that next year.

The present wage scales averaged $2.75 an hour, including incentive and bonus pay.

Memorial To Teachers Presented

FREEHOLD — The Freehold Regional High School Board of Education last night received a plaque from the class of 1960 in memory of Glenn L. Martin, physics teacher whose tragic death last year stirred the student body.

A letter of thanks will be sent to the class and the plaque will be installed in the classroom where Mr. Martin taught during his brief tenure at Freehold.

In other business, Ira Tilton was granted permission to attend an educational convention in St. Louis in October. He will be compensated for expenses incurred.

Bus contracts with 10 companies were renewed for one year at the same figures as in the past, and current bills in the amount of $20,426.80 were paid.

Old band uniforms were declared surplus and the administration was authorized to dispose of them, advertising for their sale, if necessary.

Milk contracts were awarded to Freehold Dairy, Inc., and Woolley's Dairy. Both companies bid 6 1/2 cents for 1/2 pint of milk. The secretary will contact each company and endeavor to arrive at a satisfactory delivery schedule for both.

The low bidder for the shelving in the storage room is the Hand Hardware Company of Elizabeth, with a price of $260.70. The contract was awarded to this concern.

Because of the large enrollment, building plans are being expedited. Those present were informed that a site was being sought, and as soon as suitable land could be obtained, further planning would proceed.

The meeting adjourned at 10:25 p.m.

Among plans for getting industry rolling at a faster pace, the one you hear the most about today is that of making credit more available and interest rates cheaper.

Rumors that the Washington money managers plan to do just that have affected prices of stocks and bonds recently. The question seems sure to be debated in the presidential campaign. A side-line is that U.S. rates already are lower than in most other countries and therefore are causing an increased outflow of gold.

Number Of NJ Chickens On Decline

TRENTON—Less than 7½ million chickens (not including those for commercial meat production) will be raised on New Jersey farms in 1960, a 20 per cent drop from last year and 30 per cent below the number raised in 1958.

The New Jersey Crop Reporting Service estimates that 7,435,000 egg-type chickens will be raised on Garden State poultry farms this year, compared with 9,295,000 in 1959. The sharp drop is attributed to low egg prices during the heavy hatching season.

Egg-type chickens hatched by New Jersey hatcherymen from Jan. 1 through June 30, 1960, totaled 10,350,000 compared with 15,140,000 hatched during the same period last year. The egg-type hatch for the remaining six months of this year is expected to be above 1959.

Nationally, the number of chickens raised (excluding meat-type birds) in 1960 is expected to total 339,057,000, 15 per cent below last year and the smallest number since records began in 1909.

The Federal Reserve Board in June did cut the interest rate it charges member banks that borrow from it. But this wasn't passed along in any cut in the banks' own prime loan charges, which are the lowest rates at which business firms of the highest credit standing can borrow from commercial banks on an unsecured basis.

Some stock traders have been looking for the Fed to cut its rate again to try to force some action.

Credit Easier
The Fed also made credit easier in the stock market. It reduced to 70 per cent from 90 per cent the amount of cash you must put up if you want to buy stocks on margin. The markets responded to this only half heartedly.

Federal agencies have eased credit terms for government guaranteed mortgages without stimulating home building much. Banks continue to hope the Fed will cut the amount of reserves they must keep on hand with it. New York and Chicago banks particularly hope their reserve requirements will be cut to the level of other major cities.

This would give banks more money to lend to business. And if business wants to borrow more for expansion or other activities, that could pep up the economy.

Steady Demand
At the moment, however, most bankers contend the prime rate is staying at 5 per cent because their reserves aren't plentiful enough yet to warrant a cut in view of the steady demand for all the money they have to lend. Many business firms have been able to borrow for less in the commercial paper market, where non-bank investors often have money for corporations with high ratings. But this market is limited.

Few other countries have prime rates lower than the American 5 per cent. Some funds are available for less only in the Netherlands, Switzerland, Portugal and Lebanon.

Economists at the First National City Bank of New York point out that in most major markets the prime rate is higher.

Their central banks' rate also are higher than those of the Federal Reserve. In England the prime rate is 6½ per cent, in West Germany 8 per cent, in France 7¼ per cent, in Japan 9 per cent.

Investors tend to sell their interest bearing securities here and buy higher paying ones abroad. This involves buying bank deposits there through the sale of dollar holdings to the central bank of other lands. These in turn use part of their dollar acquisitions to buy gold from the United States.

Chief Question
But the chief question here is whether money should be made cheaper and interest rates lower.

The bank economists - who naturally reflect the view of those in the banking business of lending money - hold that "in the past 15 years, nation after nation has accepted the idea that there is no inherent virtue in cheap money and that interest rates should be flexible so as to bring the demand for loanable funds into a sustainable balance with supply."

They point out that the vast amounts of capital needed in a growing economy depends upon adequate savings. And interest rates will fluctuate in ratio to the demand for capital. But what satisfies the bankers may be less pleasing to would-be borrowers, and this year in particular to the politicians.

Hawaii... and all its glamour and romance... graced the beach and clubhouse at Sea Bright Beach Club Saturday night.

Seemingly on cue, even the tide was low for the all-important hours leaving the beach... broad and unmarred by footprints like the beaches of Molokai.

Dear Kitty Kelly: Your column is filled with such sincere, solid advice that it makes one feel it is never too late to solve our own problems.

Just a little encouragement from a pretty face and my husband is entranced. You should see the tantrums he goes into if I so much as think he has been a bad boy, even when the lipstick shows.

What is the answer? Should I see and say nothing when he comes home two hours late for supper? Your thoughts on this could be very beneficial to me.

Dear J.W.: You have heard of men in their Foolish Forties, haven't you? Some who escape folly in those years suffer in their Frantic Fifties.

Instead, give him the reassurance he needs. Praise his looks, encourage him to work to keep his figure, help him be the masculine person he wants to be.

Our church group is sponsoring a convention which a friend and I would like to attend. We are both 15 and would be going to the city with my cousin.

Dear Kitty Kelly: I am 19, engaged to a young man of 21 who is away for six months. I have held a good position in an office for the last two years and go to church regularly. But my father treats me like a child of two and constantly picks on me in front of others for no reason.

Dear Troubled Mind: Your big error was in speaking bitter words. In most states and provinces on the American continent, including yours, a girl attains her majority at 18.

Send your problem to Kitty Kelly. Enclose a stamped, addressed envelope, and address her in care of The Register.

Unemployment Up 3,400

TRENTON (AP) — The Labor Department today reported thousands of women were put out of work temporarily by unpaid vacation layoffs in New Jersey last month.

The department's Division of Employment Security said total unemployment was estimated at 147,100—about 3,400 more than in June. It said the number of jobless women increased by 5,300 but the number of jobless men dropped by 1,900.

The labor force was swelled by 2,000 migrant workers as well as newly employed residents of the state who got jobs in resort areas and on Central and South Jersey farms, the division said. It estimated the unemployment as six per cent of the labor force, the same as in June.

Division Director Frank T. Judge said unemployment should drop this month, particularly in manufacturing industries. He said about 4,500 added workers will be needed on farms and about a third of them will come from outside the state.

Boys Try New 'Russian Roulette' Scheme With Nellie Bly Train

TRENTON (AP) — Police yesterday sought three boys who apparently were playing a game of "chicken" on the Pennsylvania Railroad's main line tracks.

The three boys sat on the railroad track and forced the "Nellie Bly," famed Atlantic City-New York train, to make an emergency stop Sunday night.

Detective Charles Snyder of Hamilton Township Juvenile Aid Bureau said the boys were apparently seeing which one would jump out of the path of the train junction with the university.

first. But the train stopped and the boys ran off. There were about 50 passengers on the three-car train.

Case Backs NAACP Plan On 'Rights'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-NJ) today endorsed a three-point legislative program drawn up yesterday by a leadership conference on civil rights of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Case said it would be possible to adopt the program at the current session of Congress without delaying action on other essential bills.

"If the leadership and members of both parties sincerely try," Case said in a statement, "we can accomplish the enactment of a program in civil rights such as the NAACP has proposed —"

The program calls for:

1. Federal aid to school districts attempting to desegregate.
 2. Authority for the attorney general to initiate court action to protect constitutional rights.
 3. Creation of a commission to guarantee equal job opportunities on government contracts.
- "The NAACP has demonstrated real statesmanship in the leadership it has taken," Case said. "It is up to the members of both parties in the Congress to prove themselves equally capable of statesmanlike action."

Senate Debates Antarctic Treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — A U.S. sponsored treaty for international development of the Antarctic continent was tied up today in a Senate debate over whether it would create a possible new threat from Russia.

Sen. Clair Engle (D-Calif) argued that it would, and said he will move for a vote to put off action until a new administration can look it over next year.

But Sen. Gale W. McGee (D-Wyo) noted that the Soviets are already in Antarctica and challenged the critics of the treaty to say whether they would vote to "eject them by force."

Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, was prepared to carry on the floor fight against ratification of the treaty signed by the United States, Russia and 10 other nations.

Russell has contended the treaty "ties the hands of the United States" and could mean signing away to Russia and Red China of rights he said they couldn't otherwise claim "in any shape or manner."

The treaty was the first official item of business to come before the reconvened Senate session, and President Eisenhower yesterday renewed earlier requests for its ratification.

Sen. Mike Mansfield of Montana, assistant Senate Democratic leader, said he is confident the needed two-thirds senate vote is available to ratify the treaty, perhaps by tonight. He called it "a positive contribution to peace—a genuine step forward."

The document was signed here last December with Russia, Argentina, Australia, Belgium, Chile, Japan, France, New Zealand, Norway, South Africa and the United Kingdom.

Retail Shop Is Defined By Planners

EATONTOWN — The Sid Harvey of N.J., Inc., shop on Main St. is a retail store within the terms of the zoning ordinance, the Planning Board decided last night.

The store, which sells parts for oil burners and other supplies, exclusively to qualified heater servicemen and plumbers, had queried the Zoning Board of Adjustment on this point at that body's last meeting. The question had been raised by the chief of police, William Zadorozny, representatives of the shop said.

Harold Hardmann, a zoning board member, came to the planning body last night for its interpretation of the term "retail." In defining the term, the planners said the fact that a shop may sell to a restricted clientele does not prevent it from being regarded as a retail establishment.

"Need Small River" Anson V. Ransom and Joseph Marcello appeared before the board to protest that grading for the Locust Grove Garden Apartments, now under construction, is raising the level above the grade level of adjoining houses.

"If they raise the ground all around me, I feel sure it will create a water problem on my lot," Mr. Ransom said. "No ordinary drain will take the water off that site," Mr. Marcello said. "They would need a small river."

Chairman Leo J. Carling referred the questions to the borough engineer, Henry Labrecque. Builders' Responsibility "Mr. Labrecque has assured us the grading there will not create water problems for the neighbors," he said. "I think we can feel certain he will see to it that results will be as he has promised."

A letter from Mark Handler, asking that the borough provide street lights for the borough's other garden apartments, Eaton Crest Apartments, also under construction, was referred to the planning group by the council, to which it had been addressed.

The board decided to answer that approval was granted for an integrated project, in which the streets would not be dedicated, but would remain property of the owners of the project. In this case, the board pointed out, provision of lighting was up to the builders.

Overnight Student Trip Ban Considered by Board

ATLANTIC HIGHLANDS — Overnight student trips may be a thing of the past for this borough's high school pupils.

Whether they are continued or not will depend a great deal on the parents of this year's high school seniors. After a half-hour pro and con discussion of the trips last night, the Board of Education voted to send questionnaires to the parents of all seniors, asking their views on the subject.

The key question to be asked is whether the parents are interested enough in the trips to serve as chaperons. Too Few Board President John Joslin, who proposed the questionnaire, said there were too few chaperons in past years for the number of students making the trips.

Dr. Carleton M. Saunders, superintendent, pointed out that several schools in the state have recently dropped their overnight class trips, including "two in the immediate area."

Buchanans Get Subdivision OK FAIR HAVEN — Mayor and Council last night voted to grant Helen and William Buchanan of 105 Parker Ave. permission to subdivide their 100-foot lot there into two lots.

'Snacks' to be Available For 2,100 Regional Pupils

FREEHOLD — In a lengthy meeting here last night, the Freehold Regional High School Board of Education discussed at length a proposed "snack" program.

Students unable to purchase tickets for sandwiches and milk at that time will be able to take advantage of special time allotments in order that they may purchase tickets directly from the cashier.

The board accepted a $500 bid from Caruso Construction Co., Inc., Center Ave., for installation of walkways.

Two jobs are to be done: a new walk 70 feet long and five feet wide between the two existing entrance walks, and an addition of a strip 187 feet long and three feet wide to the existing sidewalk.

Dr. Saunders advised the board of a program being instituted to have students work on beautifying the school grounds. It was decided that initially the money for the project would come out of the student activity fund.

Mrs. Fox said that because of current low bond interest rates, he thought it would be better to put the money in local banks on a six-month certificate of deposit.

Mrs. Leshner, head of the insurance committee, closed the session with a concise report on the board's insurance activities over the past year.

Two Hired Students will be notified in advance of the week's sandwich menu and may decide whether or not they care to participate in the program or bring sandwiches from home.

In addition, the board granted permission for the hiring of no more than eight additional cafeteria helpers at $8.45 per diem. They specified that one of these additional workers be a man, so that he could handle whatever heavy work would be required.

Keyport Bay Areas Dirty, Poling Says

KEYPORT — Alfred Poling, former local sanitary inspector, charged last night that five streams from Raritan Township are polluting streams here which run into Raritan Bay.

He said that the bay, in the Keyport area, is not fit for bathing and challenged the recent bacteria count reports of Sanitary Inspector Joseph Quail.

Mr. Quail, who recently replaced Mr. Poling in the sanitary inspector's post, reported June 7 that the bacteria count in the Lockport Beach area and at the foot of Broad St. was less than 200. He said this was the cleanest "of any of the areas along the Bayshore."

Refer to Board After a brief discussion on the matter, council decided to refer the charges to the Board of Health for study and report.

Joseph Kennedy, tax assessor, resigned as a member of the Planning Board, citing increased duties in the assessor's post. No new appointment was made.

Council decided that such action might be illegal and referred the matter to Borough Attorney Edward W. Currie for study.

Nudity, Intelligence

There Is a Tie-in, Singer Says

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-TV Writer
LAS VEGAS, Nev., (AP) — You may not have thought of it that way, but Monique Van Vooren says girls look more intelligent in the nude. That's one reason she declines to appear on the same stage with undraped beauties.

The Belgian singer thus seconds the motion of Carol Channing that nudes are tough to follow. Miss Channing canceled her Las Vegas contract last week because she was booked to appear on the same bill with Folies Bergere girls.

Miss Van Vooren is now appearing at the Riviera in the decorously dressed "Destry Rides Again." She stacks up well with any of the other imported beauties, give or take an inch, but prefers to keep her figure under wraps. And she expects the supporting cast to do the same.

"I have never appeared in a show with nudes," she declared, "and I would never appear nude myself. I prefer to get by on talent."

Hard to Compete
"It's not that I am against that kind of presentation, nor am I afraid to compete physically with those girls. But it is hard to compete with them on an entertainment level."

"A nude on the stage looks much more intelligent than a performer. I mean it. All she has to do is stand there. The men in the audience think she looks smart. The minute an entertainer opens her mouth on the stage, she is in danger of exposing how dumb she is. She has to work twice as hard to impress the men who have just been seeing the thoughtful-looking nudes who do nothing."

Anyway, that's what she said—something may have been lost in the translation. She added that she was surprised at the commotion the nudes have caused in Las Vegas.

Puritan Tradition
"In Europe, we think nothing of it," she commented. "Why, I just came from a little town on the French Riviera where I was the house guest of Brigitte Bardot. The women go without tops on the beach, and no one thinks anything about it."
"America is the only country where there is so much concern about bosoms. That is part of the puritan tradition here, I guess. For that reason, it is somewhat harder to recruit American girls to appear in the nude. "But it really isn't too hard to find such girls in any country. Every woman has some exhibitionism in her, some more than others. We are all in the business of attracting men."

Miss Van Vooren added a boost for the clad vs. the unclad females in the matter of attraction. "Complete nudity may be art, but it is not sexy," she contended. "A nude with even a ribbon around her neck is more appealing than one without any."

Beribboned or no, it appears that the nudes have gone about as far as they can go in Las Vegas. You hear grumblings that publicity over the bare-breasted shows have diminished the family trade in town this summer. The Dunes is experimenting with a nudeless show after two years of a Minsky policy. The Thunderbird is draping its ice-skating eye-fillers for the dinner show at least.

Sox Defeat Ford For Fourth Time This Year; Senators Win

ASSOCIATED PRESS CHICAGO—The Chicago White Sox smashed the league-leading New York Yankees, 9-1, last night behind southpaw Billy Pierce and pulled within one-half game of first place before a roaring crowd of 48,323.

Lefthander Whitey Ford was the initial victim of a 13-hit attack in which Minnie Minoso lashed out three singles and drove in as many runs. It marked the fourth time the Sox have beaten Ford this year as they evened their season series against the Yankees at 8-8.

HELPING THE CAUSE — Frank Leslie, Jr., left, representing the Fair Haven Fire Company, presents a $200 check to Tony Waters of the Fair Haven Pop Warner Football Conference last night.

Pierce was in command all the way. He doled out four hits, walked one, and struck out four in posting his 11th victory against seven losses.

The White Sox wasted little time in jumping ahead. Jim Landis slammed Ford's first pitch of the game for a single to center. Nellie Fox forced Landis and then went all the way to third when Ford uncorked a wild pitch on a fourth ball to Roy Sievers.

New York tied it in the third when Gil McDougald led off with a double and scored on infield outs by Cletus Boyer and Ford. Chicago made it 3-1 in the third. Fox singled and came home on a double by Sievers.

The White Sox wrapped it up in the fifth with three runs. Pierce touched off the rally when he led off with a perfect bunt down third and then went to third on Landis' double.

Ford, who is 1-7 against the White Sox in the last two years, suffered his seventh loss in 14 decisions. He had won five of his last six decisions. Ford was lifted for a pinch batter in the eighth and the Sox clipped reliever Ralph Terry for three runs with Joe Ginsberg doubling home a pair and Landis driving in the other with his third hit.

35-Car Field Entered In 100-Lap Championship Race At Old Bridge

OLD BRIDGE — The biggest race of the year will be held on the Old Bridge oval Friday night when a top field of modified-sportsmen drivers will try for a big win in the 100-lap championship stock car race.

To go along with a heavy cash purse prize will be a double allotment of title points that may decide the track and state championship.

Time trials will be held to qualify cars for a starting position. This is quite different from the usual feature race. On previous Friday night races, the cars with the best past performances have been placed at the rear of the field while for this race the car with the fastest two-lap time will receive the pole position.

Joe Kelly, winner of five major races here, Tommy Elliott and Don Stumpf, former state and track champions, Elton Hildreth, speedster from Vineland, Pete Frazee and many other popular drivers are entered in the 35-car field.

Also entered are Walter Williams, Alonzo Stagg, and many other drivers.

Alonso Stagg To Receive Top Award

Alonso Stagg To Receive Top Award

NEW BRUNSWICK (AP) — Footbal's top award, the gold medal of the National Football Foundation, will be presented this year to the only man named to the football Hall of Fame as both player and coach — Amos Alonzo Stagg.

Stagg, named as recipient of the 1960 medal yesterday, will receive the award on Aug. 16, his 98th birthday, at a luncheon in his honor in his home town of Stockton, Calif.

Chester J. LaRoche, president of the foundation, will present the medal which reads: "To Amos Alonzo Stagg, who of all men has done the most for American intercollegiate football."

General of the Army Douglas MacArthur received the medal last year and President Eisenhower was the 1958 recipient.

Stagg graduated from Yale in 1888, an outstanding football and baseball player. He was named to Walter Camp's first All-American team.

He turned down offers to play major league baseball in order to start coaching football at Springfield College.

Stage spent two years at Springfield and then went to the University of Chicago where he remained as athletic director and coach for 41 years.

Metcalf Victor In Rumson Arrow Race Saturday

RUMSON — Manton Metcalf, 3d, skippering "Windward," was the victor in the Rumson Country Club's Arrow race Saturday on the Shrewsbury River.

Metcalf finished first in front of Bill Haebler, skipper of "Lu Kundoo," in the season's point race.

In the Turnabout class race, also held Saturday, John Atwood, in "Seraph," was the winner over "Scott" Stewart, sailing the "Rainbow."

Bill Haebler upped his season point lead in the Arrow class Sunday when he was first across the finish line in front of Ed Stewart in "Vanguard."

Other skippers in the order of finish in Saturday's Arrow race were Stewart, third; Dick Mercer, "Bobsie," fourth; Bill Riker, "Heron," fifth; Merrill Callen, "Nishasch," sixth; and Don Summa, "Pintail," seventh.

In Saturday's Turnabout race, Manton Metcalf, 4th, finished third, while Ingrid Johnson finished fourth in "Peachy Keen."

Mercer and Neils Johnson, Jr., in "Ariel," finished third and fourth, respectively, in the Arrow race Sunday.

A home run was the decisive blow in the Cincinnati-San Francisco game also, with Ed Bailey providing the fireworks.

With the score tied in the bottom of the ninth, Bailey, first man up, hit into the stands to give Cincinnati the victory over the Maysless Giants. Willie was laid up with a bad cold.

Eddie Arcaro has won the Preakness six times, starting in 1941 with Whirlaway.

Braves Trail Pirates By 5 Games

ASSOCIATED PRESS Pinch hitter Wes Covington hit a three-run homer to give the Milwaukee Braves a 7-6 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers last night. The win cut the lead of the idle Pittsburgh Pirates to five games.

Cincinnati's Reds pulled out a 4-3 ninth-inning victory over the San Francisco Giants in the only other National League game.

In the American League the second-place White Sox clouted the New York Yankees 9-1, reducing New York's lead to a half game, and the Washington Senators overpowered Kansas City 10-7 in a two-game program.

The Dodgers had built up a 6-1 lead on Carl Willey, the starting pitcher, before Milwaukee started nibbling away at it.

Atlanta's Braves won a 5-1 game over the Cincinnati Reds in the only game in the American League Sunday.

THE QUIET TALL MAN AT FORT MONMOUTH GOLF CLUB is turning professor. He is popular Jack Welsh, pro at the Officers' Club. Jack will teach golf during the fall term of the Long Branch Community Adult School.

Quiet and polite Jack is not new to this game of chasing the white onion around yards and yards during three or four hours of play. Welsh started his golfing days as a caddy when he was 10 years old and just big enough to keep the bag from dragging the ground for 18. Jack started his bag lugging days at Old Orchard Country Club.

Later, when the assistant pro at Old Orchard resigned, he was moved up from caddy ranks to the assistant pro's job. Jack also served in the same post at Rumson Country Club, Forsgate and Deal Golf and Country Club.

In his Fort Monmouth spot he is active all 12 months of the year. He teaches a class of 70 children, has beginners and advanced classes for ladies, and classes for men. He also holds three golfing clinics a week at Fort Monmouth.

Jack was born and raised in Long Branch, went through local schools and picked up his sheepskin from Long Branch in 1941. Welsh did a hitch in the Navy from 1942-46.

Pro Welsh married the former Elizabeth McCue and now is the daddy of eight children. The Welsh clan resides in West End, Long Branch. Welsh is a couple of Scotch foursomes in the Welsh family.

Golf followers of the likable Jack Welsh can absorb the professor's knowledge next month. Registration for the Welsh course will be held Sept. 15, 20 and 27 from 7-9 p. m. in the Long Branch Senior High School.

ADRIAN BAILEY, THE BOXING MAN OF THE COUNTY, is seeking amateur fighters interested in swinging the leather. Bailey and his associates of the Shore Boys' Club, Shrewsbury Ave., New Shrewsbury, are trying to get together an amateur boxing show for the Convention Hall, Asbury Park, late this month.

Adrian says, "We need amateur boxers, experienced or otherwise. All boys will be matched according to skill and class." And these men are definitely not sending youngsters into a ring blindfolded. Novice class fighters who will be entering the ring for the first time are well trained if they are members of the Shore Club. They train every night at clubhouse located next to Danny Dondi's Airport Inn.

Danny, also an owner of the Crown Gas Station, where the boys train on the second floor, offered the use of the facilities in order to help continue the boxing sport in the area.

The Shore Boys' Club is quite active, despite not being heard from very often. Experienced teachers and fine equipment are safety factors in teaching the sport.

Neil O'Keefe of Highlands will represent Shore Boys' Club in the 147-pound class, as will Ed O'Hara of Highlands in the 155 class. Both lads are novice class fighters and will be entering the ring for the first time.

Entries also have been received from Frank Boyle's Cliffwood Boy's Club, including Ed Westead and Marv Jensen, Matawan; Al Fredricks, Keyport, and Johnny Brown and Roland Knight of Cliffwood.

A special bout will be made pairing Knight with Bill Wilson of Asbury Park, a heavyweight. Cliffwood boxers are experienced and they recently fought in a show for the Frenau Independent Fire Co. at Matawan High School.

The Shore Boys' Club doors are open for any boys in this area who are interested in boxing or entering the planned show. Check at the Crown Gas station. The boys and teachers are there generally every night in the week.

SHORT SNORTS — Robert Kofoed, Keyport, will compete in the Jet 14 National championship at Tred-Avon, Md., Aug. 27-28. John Volk, Philadelphia, will crew for Kofoed in his "Deuces Wild." Volk crewed for Larry Low, Rumson, in the National Comet championships in 1958.

Art and Chick Silcox, Keyport Yacht Club, will compete in the Invitation Regatta of the Raritan Yacht Club. This is for cruising auxiliary power craft and the Silcox eight-meter sloop "Cayuga" will be piloted by Art and Chick.

Tonight is the night newsmen will get behind the Red Bank Board of Education's iron curtain. It'll be "C" Day, (Coaches Day) the day the coaching staff of RBHS will be announced. Administrators clammed up like a spy caught behind the iron curtain, when questioned. One said, "No comment." The other, "I can't help you." In past years these same administrators stated they wanted to have a good public relations program. In other words, what they wanted the public to know.

From the grapevine, we understand interviews have been going on for some time. One coach interviewed was a little guy, 6'9". One thing we do know, and that is a football coach is in the fold and he comes from out of the system. Soooo, as the administrators say, "The board will release the information."

Debbie Hilliard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Hilliard, 31 Lancaster Ave., Keansburg, recently won a second place in juvenile speed event at Little Rock, Ark., in the Roller Skating Rinks of America National championships. She skated four times, qualified, and then went into the finals. The family drove three days getting there and it was tough for Debbie to really stretch those speed legs. She was the only one from the Keansburg club that placed.

Yankees' Lead Cut to 1/2 Game After Losing to Chicago, 9-1

ASSOCIATED PRESS It was increasingly evident today that the Chicago White Sox have no intention of rolling over and playing dead whenever things get tough in the American League race.

There was a time when, with the White Sox making threatening gestures in a pennant race, the New York Yankees would come to Chicago, lead with their ace, wind up taking an important series. Then they'd leave town brushing their hands with a "that's that" gesture.

Eddie Lopat used to put the Chicago upstarts in their place. Then Whitey Ford took over as the killer.

Ford started this year with a 25-13 record against the Chicagoans. He has started four times against them this year. The Sox have beaten them this year. The Sox have beaten him four times, including the 9-1 shelling they gave the Yankees Monday night.

The victory before a whopping crowd of 48,323 cut the Yankee lead to half a game, and evened the season's series between the two clubs at 8-8.

Bill Pierce had the New Yorkers eating out of his sinewy left hand as he turned in his 11th victory against seven defeats. He held them to four hits. Gil McDougald doubled in the third, and went to third base and then home on infield outs for the Yankees' only run.

The Washington Senators took a slugfest from the Kansas City run homer, his 14th in the Sen-Athletics, 10-7, in the only other attack. Killebrew also had a brace of singles, but the really hot batter of the evening was the Cincinnati Reds' Dick Williams, who defeated San Francisco Athletics' Dick Williams, who went five-for-five, including a pair of doubles. Norm Siebern and Harmon Killebrew got a two-five trips.

Tennis Squad Nips Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP)—United States Davis Cup Captain David Freed breathed a sigh of relief today and looked ahead to the American Zone final against Venezuela in Cleveland Sept. 16, 17, 18.

Freed's charges whipped Mexico, 3-2, in the semi-finals which finished up on a discordant note Monday. After Barry MacKay clinched the decision with a 6-2, 6-4, 2-6, 12-10 victory over Mario Llamas, Chuck McKinley of St. Louis and Esteban Reyes, Jr., took the court for the final-though meaningless—singles.

With McKinley ahead, 2-1, in the first set after breaking Reyes' service in the third game, rain began to fall. Mexico officials called the match and announced it would be continued today.

But Freed demurred. He said the team members had plane reservations home and that it would be impossible to play today. He ordered McKinley to default.

So it wound up a hair-thin margin for the U.S. team, the closest, in fact, ever against Mexico.

"We were lucky to squeeze through," commented Freed, in his first year as non-playing captain. "Mexico has a very good team. I don't think we'll have as much trouble against Venezuela."

Upstate, Bridgeport, C. W. Post, Temple, Delaware, Gettysburg, Springfield and Kings Point will meet on successive Saturdays.

Eleven members of the local Skiters tried their hand at the kite. Those members were Egan, Frank Manson, Little Silver, "Crash" Bowers and Ted Aborn, Fair Haven; Ray Sullivan, Rumson; Charlie Stout, Long Branch; Stu and Bruce Edington, Red Bank; George and Gee Gee Blair, Shrewsbury, and Sig Olving of Red Bank.

Besides the skiing, pyramids, tricks, jumping and clown acts were also featured in the show. The ski show was the eighth show presented this season by the Skiters.

A trick is a trick, but it is also an entry. Make sure you win the trick when it does you the most good—when you are in position to make a desirable play from the hand that wins the trick.

West leads the ten of spades, and you can get a "free" finesse if you want it. That free finesse will be very expensive.

See what happens. You put up dummy's queen of spades, and East shrewdly plays low. You are in the dummy for the first and last time, and you win exactly two tricks in each suit. This leaves you one trick short.

Spurn The Finesse
You're better off if you spurn that free finesse. Play a low spade from dummy at the first trick and win in your hand with the ace.

Next, lead out the ace and king of hearts. Follow with your low heart, thus clearing the suit. Dummy's last two hearts are thus good for tricks.

No matter how the opponents defend, you can reach dummy with either the queen or the jack of spades. That puts you in the dummy, in position to cash two heart tricks. You thus make ten tricks instead of only eight.

The important thing to notice is that you get only two spade tricks no matter which way you handle the suit. Make sure you win dummy's spade trick after you have cleared the hearts.

DAILY QUESTION
Partner deals and bids one spade, and the next player passes. You hold: Spades—A 6 2 Hearts—A K 8 Diamonds—A K 7 Clubs—A K 6 5. What do you say?

Answer: Bid three clubs. If your partner is a sober citizen, his opening bid must consist of just about all the missing high cards. He will rebid, and you will go to a grand slam. If your partner is a gay bird, he may be psyching; and then he will have a worthless hand. Don't jump immediately to seven notrump and only then find out that your partner is up to monkey business.

LOBSTER-SIZE SHRIMP
OCALA, Fla. (AP) — A fresh water shrimp big as a lobster was netted in crystal-clear Silver Springs near here.

The 26-inch monster was trapped after weeks of effort as it ventured out of a deep underwater cavity from which the huge stream flows.

Except in size, the fresh water giant looks about like the salt water variety.

The case is reported of a woman who had chronic headaches and was given a complete physical examination not only by her physician but by a neurologist to whom she was referred by her doctor. Nothing wrong could be found except one thing—a denture which did not fit properly. When her dentist adjusted the denture

"ASTRO-GUIDE"

By Ceean

For Wednesday, August 10

Present—For You and Yours . . . Beware of making commitments that will fall due at an inconvenient time. Otherwise things should go your way and you'll find those around you unusually cooperative and sympathetic. Keep household chores to a minimum so that you can relax and enjoy the company of loved ones.

Past . . . The English language has five times as many words today as it did in the reign of Queen Elizabeth I. Some of them are pretty weird, too!

The Day Under Your Sign

ARIES (Born March 21 to April 19) Your problem may be the absence of an idea. The solution will come to you.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) If you are to gain true happiness, be a giver as well as a go-getter.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) If there is always agreement, you'll find part of the group isn't thinking.

CANCER (June 22 to July 21) Lend your moral support to friends, but don't try to charge interest.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) To be popular, you'll have to listen to a lot of things you already know.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) One thing you can keep without being taxed is your word.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) To clear difficulties in your path, there's no use like a good principle.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Formula for failures: try to please everybody except yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) If you think you are a big shot, remember that you can be fired.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) Your temper improves in ratio to how much you don't use it!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) Don't carry a tale—you'll only make a monkey of yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to March 20) Don't be guilty of wasting rights that other men have fought for.

WORLD TODAY

By ERNEST B. VACCARO

Chances are slim the Senate will act at its current short session to strengthen U. S. support for the World Court.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, as well as President Eisenhower, Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and Attorney General William P. Rogers, had advocated repeal of a U. S. veto over the court's jurisdiction.

But despite their public stands, the 1960 Republican platform on which Nixon is seeking the presidency avoids mention of the bitter and highly emotional controversy the issue has stirred up.

Sen. John F. Kennedy, the Democratic presidential standard bearer, supports repeal, and his course is backed by a provision in the Democratic platform.

But Democrats—among whom many southerners are opposed to giving the court further power—are doubtful they can muster the necessary two-thirds majority to effect a change.

Reservation
The major dispute is over proposals to repeal what is known as the Connally reservation, sponsored by former Sen. Tom Connally (D-Tex) and adopted by the Senate as a reservation when it ratified U. S. membership in the international court of justice created under the United Nations.

The rider says, in effect, that the United States shall be the sole judge of whether an international dispute in which it is involved can be brought before the World Court, or whether it involves domestic issues not subject to ruling of the court.

The reservation's supporters—who bombard the Senate Foreign Relations Committee with letters and telegrams every time the issue comes up—contend the veto is necessary to prevent a surrender to an international court of U. S. sovereignty.

The committee decided, in view of the emotions stirred up by the repealer, to keep it off the floor in an election year session. The decision was reinforced by doubts it could muster a two-thirds majority.

But the committee did approve, and sent to the floor, four treaties governing the rights and duties of signatories and their vessels on the seas—along with a protocol providing that disputes under these treaties would be referred to the World Court for settlement. This in effect would waive the Connally reservation as it applies to these treaties.

Short Majority
The four treaties and the protocol along with them were ratified in one vote May 26. But Sen. Russell B. Long (D-La) and others insisted on a separate vote on the protocol and it was rejected. It got a 49-30 vote of approval, but that was short of the necessary two-thirds.

A motion to reconsider that rejection is pending on the calendar.

Also pending is a treaty to prevent pollution of the sea by oil. Under this treaty, too, the United States would waive the application of the Connally reservation insofar as disputes arising under it are concerned.

The committee took the position it was an academic question in this case, anyway, since the treaty covered oil pollution on the high seas by ships, and disputes under it could not be construed in any way as being within U. S. domestic jurisdiction.

But Sen. Long said he would insist on making the Connally reservation applicable to both the law of the sea protocol and the oil pollution treaty. In view of the shortness of the session, neither may be brought up.

The same issue is involved in a pending treaty of friendship with Pakistan and a "convention of establishment" with France. What will happen to them, nobody knows.

Eisenhower's stated position is that if the world is to move to the settlement of disputes by law, rather than arms, it must accept the World Court's jurisdiction fully, if other nations are to be persuaded to do so.

The opposition argues that repeal or waiver of the Connally reservation would allow a World Court to move in on disputes involving the Panama Canal, immigration policy and many other fields of major domestic importance.

False Bomb Scare Puts 46-Year-Old in Hospital

TRENTON (AP)—A 46-year-old man was under observation at Trenton State Hospital yesterday after causing a false bomb scare in his Hamilton Township neighborhood.

Mercer County Civil Defense officials planned to examine a container of radioactive material found in the man's cellar. Police said Winston Wells of 1244 Chambers St., Hamilton Township, caused the bomb scare. His parents called police after their son told them he had hidden a bomb in the house and it was set to go off in two or 14 hours.

Police closed off two blocks around the home and evacuated neighbors while an Army bomb squad searched the Wells home. No bomb was found, but a container of material that gave off measurable radiation was discovered.

Police said Wells was using the radioactive material to experiment on rats.

A Civil Defense official said the sealed container gave off an amount of radioactivity that posed no threat to the neighbors.

"But I wouldn't want to live with it," he said. Wells was taken to the mental hospital and the neighborhood went back to normal after the Army bomb squad completed its search.

The population of what later became the United States was estimated at 2,500 in 1620, the year the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock.

Politics Out on Limb

BIPARTISAN—The girl in these hand-painted nylon stockings is about as impartial as you can get this presidential election year. The hose are being sold, however, with just one party symbol to the pair. The donkey and elephant in the circles are actual size. Artist Ellen Troy executed the glittering designs in gold and rhinestone—and everything is washable.
